

ROSTER OF BOSTON PLAYERS ELIGIBLE TO PLAY IN SERIES

And Short History of Their Careers in the National Pastime.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The following roster of the leading players of the Boston American League club, who are likely to participate in the coming world's series, includes the principal features of their playing career from the time they entered the national sport:

Manager R. Carrigan.
William F. Carrigan, the manager of the team, was born in Lewiston, Me., October 22, 1883, and came to the Red Sox from Holy Cross College in 1907. Later he was sent to the Toronto club of the Eastern League for further development and in 1908 he returned to the Boston club and has remained with that team since. Late in July, 1913, he became manager, in which capacity he has acted for the three years. Carrigan is one of the very few playing managers of the present day. As a catcher he has taken part in more than thirty games this season and has an excellent batting and fielding average.

John J. Barry.
John J. Barry, who was born at Meriden, Conn., in 1887, graduated from Holy Cross College, where he became a prominent factor in college baseball and was signed by the Philadelphia Athletics after his graduation. He was one of Mack's mainstays from 1908 to 1914 when the Philadelphia manager broke up his wonderful team and Barry went to Boston. He was the regular second baseman for the Red Sox, a timely hitter and a player possessed of all around ability but injuries which he received during the present season have prevented him from playing for some time past and he may not take part in the coming series.

Forrest Cady.
Forrest Cady, first string catcher of the Red Sox, is the tallest man on the team. He was born at Bishop, Ill., twenty-five years ago and made his professional debut with Indianapolis in 1908. He was sold by Indianapolis in 1910 to Newark and was with that team for two years, being sold to Boston in 1912, when that club won the world's championship from the Giants.

George Foster.
George Foster, born in Bokoshe, Okla., twenty-seven years ago, is a right-hand pitcher. Most of his experience has been gained with the Red Sox, as he started his career in the Texas League with Houston in 1912, and went to Boston in 1913. Foster, with Wood absent, was the mainstay of the Red Sox last year, and promises to continue in that role for some time, because he is a willing worker and possesses the skill and good judgment to go with it.

Dell C. Gainer.
"Dell" Gainer, who substituted at the initial sack, and hit the ball more often than any infielder on the club the latter part of the season, is 23 years old. He began his career in 1909 with the Fort Wayne club of the Central League. He was purchased from Fort Wayne by Detroit in 1910, but was not seasoned enough. He returned to Fort Wayne, but was recalled in 1911. He immediately won the first bag job on the Tiger team and played through the season of 1911. He broke his wrist in 1912 and was out of the game so long Detroit sold him to Boston. He was a utility infielder and pinch hitter for the club last season and has been of great value to the team.

Lawrence Gardner.
Lawrence (Larry) Gardner, third baseman, is a graduate of the University of Vermont, where he first learned his baseball. He was born at Enosburg Falls, Va., May 23, 1886, of English parents. From 1905 to 1907 he was star of the Vermont team. Many clubs offered Gardner a contract, and he practically chose the Red Sox himself, signing in 1908. He was farmed out to Lynn of the New England League in 1908, returning to the Red Sox the following season. Since then he has played continuously, excepting, when injured, at first in utility roles, then succeeding McConnell at second base, and later being moved to third base, his present position. He is a splendid fielder and an excellent batsman, besides being fast on the bases. He bats left-handed and throws right-handed.

Sylvanus Gregg.
Sylvanus "Vean" Gregg was born at Ashland, Wash., October 27, 1887. He played ball with many independent teams during his early career, and received his first professional assignment with the Spokane club of the Northwestern League in 1909. He was purchased by Cleveland in 1911. He was then sold, in the middle of 1914, to Boston.

Olaf Henriksen.
Olaf Henriksen, substitute outfielder and pinch hitter of the Red Sox, is a New Englander, 25 years of age, whose winter home is in Clinton, Mass. He first played professionally with the Brockton club of the New England League in 1910, and was purchased by Boston during the season of 1911. He bats and throws left-handed.

Richard J. Holtz.
Richard J. (Dick) Holtz was born in Parkersburg, W. Va., October 26, 1889. His first professional contract was with Clarkburg, W. Va., in 1907. He joined the Newark League club in 1908, but was sent to Wheeling, from where he was purchased by the Cincinnati Reds. Until 1914 he played with the Reds and for the rest of that time he was among the best as a first baseman. He was sold to Boston by Horng, for private reasons, and immediately made his debut with the Red Sox. He is a big fellow who knows the game well, can pitch in the field with the best, and is a main factor in the great machine.

Harry B. Hooper.
Harry B. Hooper, right fielder for the Red Sox, started his career as a pitcher, but was placed in the outfield because of his hitting ability. He was born in Santa Clara, Calif., August 24, 1887, and his first professional engagement was with Sacramento, Calif., in 1907. He was purchased from the coast team by the Red Sox, and became a regular in 1909.

Harold C. Janvry.
Harold C. Janvry is a utility player of much worth. He began his career with the Boston English high school and was born in Boston 23 years ago. His first professional experience was with the Red Sox, which team he joined in 1911. He was farmed out to Jersey City in 1912 and recalled the next season. He is a flashy infielder and a timely hitter, and can play any of the infield positions.

Hubert B. Leonard.
Hubert B. ("Dutch") Leonard, the start southpaw of the Boston team, and probably the most efficient left-hander in the league, was born at Fresno, Cal., twenty-four years ago. He received his early baseball training at St. Mary's College, in San Francisco. He came direct to the Red Sox from the college ranks in 1911, but was sent to Denver for seasoning. He was with Denver in 1912 and part of 1913 and returned to the Red Sox in the middle of the 1913 season. In 1914 Leonard led the American League pitchers in efficiency.

George Lewis.
George (Duffy) Lewis, left fielder of the Red Sox, was born in San Francisco, April 18, 1888. He started his baseball career as a collegian on the Pacific Coast, his first professional engagement being with Alameda, Cal., in 1906. He came to Boston in 1910 and has been a regular almost from his first day. He bats and throws right-handed and is considered a .300 hitter.

Carl Mays.
Carl Mays, another member of the Boston pitching staff was born in Portland, Ore., twenty-three years ago. He came to the Red Sox last year from the Providence club of the International League. He is a right-hander and, although a youngster, has convinced Carrigan and others that he is the coming sensation of the league.

George Ruth.
George ("Babe") Ruth, 21 years old, was born in Baltimore and first attracted attention as a pitcher for St. Mary's Industrial School of that city. He was taken under the wing of "Jack" Dunn, then manager of the Orioles, who obtained papers as Ruth's guardian and played the young fellow on the club. Ruth went to the Red Sox in 1914 and was farmed to Providence, but returned last year in time to win enough games for the Red Sox to keep them in the race. Ruth also is a hitter of ability. He is a left-handed boxman and also has ability in this position.

Everett Scott.
Everett Scott was born at Bluffton, Ind., twenty-three years ago. He played semi-professionally until attracted by Boston scouts in 1913, when he was induced to sign with the majors. He was sent to St. Paul for seasoning, being recalled in 1914. He is not a great hitter, but manages to place a hit into the game when most needed.

Ernest G. Shore.
Ernest G. (Long) Shore, twenty-five years of age, learned his pitching feats at Guilford College of Fayetteville, N. C. John McGraw tried him out in 1912, but Shore, when released from the New York baseball club to Indianapolis, refused to carry out the plan. The next year McGraw reinstated Shore, who got an engagement with Baltimore, subsequently going to the Boston club. Shore pitched remarkable ball for the Red Sox in the 1915 world series.

Chester D. Thomas.
Chester D. Thomas, who warms up the pitchers, catches when Cady and Carrigan are overworked and pinch hits with a timely punch, was born in Sharon, Kan., twenty-six years ago. He is a right-hand thrower and a left-hand swatter, and does both with equal excellence.

Charles Wagner.
Charles (Heinie) Wagner, utility infielder of the Red Sox, probably is the oldest man in point of service on the Boston club. He was born in New York, September 23, 1881, where he played semi-professionally for several years before being tried out by the Giants as a shortstop in 1901. He reached his right form in 1906, attracted the Red Sox owners and was purchased by that club.

ANNUAL WORLD'S SERIES ALPHABET.

N is for Niehoff, and also for Ness. The latter won't play in this series, I guess.

O is for Olson, the Robin's shortstopper. I'd call him a Swede if I thought it was proper.

P is for Pfeffer; his pals call him Jeff. His surname's pronounced as if started with F.

Q is for Quigley; he's one of the ump, Twenty-tum-tumpy-tum-tumpy-tum-tumps.

R is for Ruth, and he not only pitches but he can so hard that he rips all the stitches.

S is for Stengel; I think he's called Jake. But of course there's a chance that I've made a mistake.

T is for Thomas, who catches for Boston. And recently pulled off a battle with Austin.

U is for umpires and eke ukalele. The instrument played on by old William Bailey.

V is for Viox; the lady fans love him. He played with the Pirates last time I heard of him.

W stands for T. Walker, called Thlie. He hits 'em as far as from Newark to Philly.

X is for ten, which I'm willing to bet

"A COWARDLY REFUSAL"

serving terms in the county jail, who were turned for that occasion.

Mr. Cornwell has been making many statements as to my administration that are contemptibly malicious. He seems not in the least concerned as to the truth of the charges he may utter, and his recklessness in this regard has discredited him as a candidate before the people of the state.

I must repeat the assertion made in my letters: I am convinced of the maliciousness of Mr. Cornwell's desire to make libelous statements to continue his barefaced falsehoods without due recourse by me. I must insist that he state the truth in his assertions about my administration acts in the future—a thing he has been unwilling to do in the past.

Mr. Cornwell asserts something is wrong as to a certain expenditure of $1,957.84 made payable to Guy B. Biddinger from the civil contingent fund. This expenditure was given the widest publicity in the state at the time it was made. It has been approved by the legislature of 1915 as a just and proper one, and in this connection I wish to quote a communication addressed to me by Judge William S. O'Brien, a Democrat, judge of the circuit court of Upshur county, in which he urges that the payment should be made by the state in order that the ends of justice might be protected:

Judge O'Brien's Letter.
"Buckhannon, W. Va.,
October 21, 1913.

"Hon. H. D. Hatfield,
Charleston, W. Va.
Dear Sir:
"Havin gin mind our conversation in relation to the bribery trials had during my recent visit to Charleston, I make bold to write you in reference to the Biddinger allowance, which so far remains unsatisfied by the state of West Virginia.

"From a personal standpoint I have no interest whatever in payment of this claim, other than the satisfaction which the approval of my action in the matter would bring to me. This purely personal interest will not be considered.

"I have no special interest in asking its approval because it was allowed by me as the trial judge and as the representative of the state of West Virginia, in the light of official duty. I tried to acquaint you with the main grounds for my action, and I feel that you approve it.

"Then if I was right, or in the main, right, why should the court be left under undue criticism, for the doing of the thing.

"As you will understand, I should not at present by publication try to allay criticism. These bribery cases are yet pending in our courts.

There should be no proceedings had to compel its satisfaction for such action would, in my humble opinion, be a proclamation to our citizenship that the resources of the state are not to be arrayed on the prosecution of those charged with official graft and bribery, and that our legislature is yet to remain an open field of corruption.

"And now, Mr. Governor, it appears to me that the present attitude in reference to this allowance is causing those prosecutions to lose beneficent force, and I want to respectfully request of you, if you feel that you can consistently do so, that you find some way to satisfy this claim, out of the public funds of the state, and that such action be taken without delay.

"I beg of you to believe me when I say that were I not morally certain that this allowance was made with the best interests of good and pure government in view; and that in reviewing my action in the premises, I did what the exigencies of the case demanded; and what I did was right, I would not make this request.

"If you do take the step which I have suggested, I feel sure that every good citizen will in the end commend you for your action, and that the state will feel the impulse in civic righteousness.

"I am, sir, very respectfully,
"Signed) WM. S. O'BRIEN."
And after Payment.

And also the following letter received from Judge O'Brien after payment had been made:

"Buckhannon, W. Va.,
November 2, 1913.

"Hon. H. D. Hatfield,
Charleston, W. Va.
My dear Governor:—
"I beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 25th ult. in relation to your satisfaction of the Biddinger claim. Business matters compelled neglect of correspondence. I assure you that I highly appreciate the kind of things you said of me in your public statement, and that it will be my highest ambition and endeavor to command not only your respect, but merit your commendation as well.

"I, too, regretted that circumstances appeared to demand your interference in this matter, but when I saw that the enemies of substantial purity and integrity in official affairs were taking advantage of the differences of judgment between me and the auditor and were so playing upon public sentiment as to cause these trials to lose salutary force and effect, I felt it a public duty to call on you to intervene.

"I am sure that all well meaning men will commend you for your action in this matter, especially when the exigencies of the case are more generally understood.

CARL MAYS MAY GET CHANCE THIS TIME

Carl Mays, the Boston Red Sox right-hander, was too young and inexperienced for work in the big series last fall, but may have his chance this year. Mays has won a good percentage of his games this season and next to Babe Ruth has the best average of the Boston twirlers.
